

The Shine
that Stays!

YOU'VE used many different metal polishes. They all looked pretty good just after being put on. But did they soon "go dull?"

MOBO Metal Polish

puts on the shine that stays. It removes tarnish, stains and dullness, and puts in their place a brilliant and lasting polish.

Especially good for brass and nickel, and can be applied to hot as well as cold surfaces.

MOBO Metal Polish cannot scratch—you could even use it on gold and silver without marring them.

Just try MOBO. Get it from any of these well-known dealers:

COMPANY M OF CENTRAL CAPTURES FLAG IN COMPETITIVE DRILL OF HIGH SCHOOL CADETS.

HONORS OF DRILL AWARDED TO CO. M

Central High School Winner of the Trophy in Annual Competition.

ALSO GETS THIRD PLACE, GARLAND GOING TO CO. A

Western Boys Second in the Contest. Winning Commands Given Enthusiastic Greeting.

Today is Central High School's day. Company M of that school having won the annual competitive drill of the High School Cadets held at the American League ball park yesterday and Monday afternoons. Central also won third place in the contest, that honor going to Company A. The hearts of Western High School's followers were made glad by the winning of the second award by Company H of that school.

Company M, the winning one, is the "new" company at Central this year. This does not mean that the boys in that company are inexperienced cadets, but that it is the first time Central has had a fourth company. This is also the first time that Central has won the flag since 1910, when Company A, under Capt. Covell, carried off the honors.

Out of a possible 288 points the winning company, under Capt. John R. Belcher, made 277. Company H, under Capt. J. L. Wheelchell, made 270, and Company A, under Capt. George N. Lester, Jr., made a total of 268. The closeness of the scores shows how closely the drill was contested.

Celebrations in honor of bringing back the flag to "old Central" were held at the high school last evening and this morning. Speeches, songs and yells featured both celebrations, although the one this morning was slightly more formal.

Given Enthusiastic Reception. When the winning Central companies went back to the school last night they were met by large groups of students and teachers, who welcomed them joyfully. Then they were given a supper which had been arranged for them by the teachers.

Following the supper a general assembly was held, the crowd literally packing the school building. Many "old grads" and former company officers and members of the faculty, headed by Principal Emory M. Wilson, made addresses. There were a number of songs, one of which was composed by Miss E. E. Simons, head of the Engineering department of the school. In unstinted measure. Visiting delegations from the other schools cheered the winners.

This morning another celebration was held, at which all of the companies throughout the district were present. Officials of the schools, headed by Mr. Thurston, also attended these exercises. Mr. Thurston, Mr. Kramer and Mr. Wilson, as well as a number of other officers of the school system, are graduates of Central.

Regiment Undergoes Inspection. Prior to the announcement of the winner of the drill yesterday afternoon, Assistant Secretary Breckinridge, escorted by Col. Gilbert Church Clark of the cadets, Henry P. Blair, president of the board of education; Ernest L. Thurston, superintendent of schools, and Capt. Powell Clayton, general staff, U. S. A., aid to Mr. Breckinridge, inspected the regiment. Following the twelve companies passed in review while the crowd in the grandstand cheered and waved banners.

When the judges of the drill appeared, after totaling the scores, a huge cheer over the 16,000 or more persons who crowded the stands. Capt. Horace P. Hobbs, U. S. A., chairman of the board of judges, took a step forward and whispered a word to Col. Clark, who saluted, turned and walked toward the companies, which were assembled in regimental front in column of squads.

Clark, who saluted, turned and walked toward the companies, which were assembled in regimental front in column of squads.

Arriving in front of Company M, Col. Powell Clayton, general staff, U. S. A., fronted the company. The boys in that company were feeling at that time is only known to them and to those who have gone through similar experiences. Yet not one made a move, nor did one even waver. The company stood as firm as a high school soldier—to be a stoic. This same spirit was abroad in the other companies—the one which gave no sign of the sorrow felt that they had not won the drill.

Capt. Belcher Congratulated. When the company arrived before the little group of officials, representing both the military and civil life,

Lower—Capt. Belcher of the winning company.

Mr. Breckinridge congratulated Capt. Belcher and presented him with the flag. Then he pinned on Capt. Belcher's breast the Allison Naylor medal, a replica of which will be given to the winning captain to keep when the original has to be returned for the next presentation.

Red ribbons, the time-honored badge of the members of the winning company, were next bestowed. The time banner of the cadets, so tattered that it now has to be sheltered in a large wood and glass case, was also given into the keeping of Company M.

This banner, accompanied by the streamers for the last twenty-five years back—one streamer for each winning company—is one of the most valuable mementos in the public schools of this city today.

In order that the crowd yesterday might see the time-worn emblem, Stephen E. Kramer, assistant superintendent, who has direct charge of the cadets, had it brought to the field, where it was turned about from time to time so the crowd could see it.

Company H and Company A were brought to the front, successively, following the retirement of Company M. Members of these companies received purple and white ribbons, respectively, denoting the winning of the second and third place.

Both the assistant secretary of war and the judges of the drill congratulated the boys—not only the winners, but all of the companies—on the excellence of the showing made.

Tribute to the Organization. "It is a fine bunch of boys," declared Capt. Hobbs, chairman of the board of judges. "Every school in the country should have such an organization. The training in discipline which these boys receive is fine, and there is no doubt but that it is good for them."

In addition to those already named the audience yesterday included Commissioner Louis Brownlow, Capt. James F. Oyster and William V. Cox, former presidents of the board of education; Thomas Grant, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce; Ernest H. Daniels, vice president of the board; various other members of the board; principals of the high schools and general school officers and a large number of former cadet officers.

Mr. Kramer had general charge of the arrangements for the drill. The boys have been instructed during the last year in military tactics by Major Wallace A. McWhirter, N. G. D. C., instructor for the regiment.

DEVELOPING NEW PROCESSES.

Designed to Produce Bases for Dyes and High Explosives.

Secretary Lane announced today that "excellent progress" was being made in development of the gasoline and benzol processes designed by Dr. Walter P. Clayton of the bureau of mines to increase the output of gasoline by refiners and to make possible the production from crude petroleum of benzol and benzene, which are the bases for dyes and high explosives. He said the gasoline process now was already for "large scale industrial application," and the "hope is expressed that the benzol process will be ready soon."

The benzol process is being developed in co-operation with a chemical company of New York, which has agreed that "all patentable equipment, processes and ideas available as a result of the co-operative work will be turned over to the department to be dedicated to the public."

The department stands ready, Secretary Lane said, to enter into similar agreements with other companies.

CHURCH IN CAMPAIGN TO RAISE $58,000

One Hundred and Twenty-Five Workers Will Endeavor to Ob-
Sum in Six Days.

In an effort to raise $58,000 in six days, the Immaculate Conception Church, 8th and N streets northwest, at a banquet last night officially launched a "golden jubilee campaign," with 125 workers. The banquet was given in the Immaculate Conception School Hall, where the headquarters of the campaignists will be.

Those who addressed the gathering were Judge Michael M. Doyle, former Judge William H. De Lacy, John Burke, treasurer of the United States; Miss Janet E. Richards and Rev. M. J. Riordan.

Judge Doyle spoke of the church work, and expressed the hope that the campaign would be a very successful one, and that at the end of the six days the campaignists would have the $58,000 in their possession.

Before the banqueters left the hall subscriptions aggregating $5,500 had been pledged.

Themes of the Speakers. Judge De Lacy alluded pleasantly to his former membership in the parish and of his early associations with the pastor, Father Riordan. Treasurer Burke dwelt on pioneer life in the west and contrasted the humble churches there with the magnificent ones in the city of Washington. Miss Janet Richards spoke of the prominent part which women take in church work, and quoted Secretary Bryan as saying that only 10 per cent of the inmates of jails were women, while the great majority of church attendants were women.
